

Frost & Sullivan Names Mach7 Technologies Medical Imaging Informatics Company of the Year

A commitment to custom-driven design and delivery of PACS-neutral solutions heralded as best-in-class

Burlington, VT – October 19, 2015 – Mach7 Technologies, a global provider of enterprise medical image management solutions, has been named the Asia Pacific Medical Imaging Informatics Company of the Year by global consulting firm Frost & Sullivan. Each year Frost & Sullivan presents this award to the company that demonstrates outstanding achievement and superior performance in the field of medical imaging informatics.

Frost & Sullivan notes that Mach7 Technologies delivers innovation and flexibility stating, “Mach7 moves imaging data from monolithic, interoperability-resistant PACS to modular, customized enterprise image management solutions through a PACS-neutral back-end-infrastructure with sophisticated enterprise PACS viewers. Not only does this make imaging data highly accessible, it also improves mobility and quality of service for radiologists.”

Mach7’s commitment to customer-driven design is core to the company’s culture. This deeply-rooted philosophy is reflected in the solutions Mach7 brings to market. “As an organization, Mach7 Technologies wants to ensure its clients are well-equipped to face the future of healthcare and is constantly building solutions that support this vision,” noted Frost & Sullivan analyst Natasha Gulati.

“This award is a great honor for Mach7 Technologies,” commented Ravi Krishnan, founder, Mach7 Technologies. “We are proud to be recognized for the strength of our technology and our collaborative business practices. Our customers value our partnership approach and our ability to deliver a unique value proposition with highly intuitive, scalable, and standards-based solutions.”
