

Virginia Commonwealth University Health Goes Live with Enterprise Image Management Powered by Mach7 Technologies

Superior technology advances enterprise image management as VCU Health builds their optimal clinical imaging ecosystem on Mach7 Enterprise Imaging Platform.

Burlington, VT – September 19, 2016 – Mach7 Technologies (ASX:M7T), an award-winning market leader in medical image management solutions, welcomes Virginia Commonwealth University Health System Authority (VCU Health) to its global family of academic medical centers, healthcare delivery systems, and outpatient imaging centers now leveraging the latest in VNA technology with Mach7 Enterprise Imaging Platform.

The flexible and robust tool set offered out-of-the-box by Mach7 Enterprise Imaging Platform enabled VCU Health to easily define and quickly implement highly specialized workflows. These workflows extend far beyond basic routing and pre-fetching functionality and allow VCU Health to streamline clinical operations. Eric Rice, Mach7 CTO noted "There is great collaboration between VCU IT and the Mach7 team. The solution was implemented quickly for an immediate impact on patient care."

Doug Ro PhD, director of radiology information technology commented, "The strength of Mach7's solution stood out during our extensive evaluation. Mach7's platform delivers technical superiority, extensive flexibility and immediate benefit to our enterprise without massive investments in custom coding that other solutions require. Minimal disruption to our existing systems coupled with the built-in ability to optimize workflows out of the gate, along with solid references from regional and academic institutions using the technology made our decision to choose Mach7 unanimous."
